Stroud man injured as train strikes car

SLATEFORD — Russell C. Cramer of Norton Road, Stroud Township, miraculously escaped serious injury early Tuesday night when his small foreign car was in collision with an Erie-Lackawanna train at the Slateford Crossing.

Cramer, 29, was listed in fair condition Tuesday night in the General Hospital of Monroe County's intensive care unit.

Cramer's father, Spencer, said his son suffered a concussion, cut on the head and that x-rays showed slight internal damage.

Mrs. Winifred Manzy, who lives adjacent to the crossing ran to the scene when she heard the crash at 6:05 p.m.

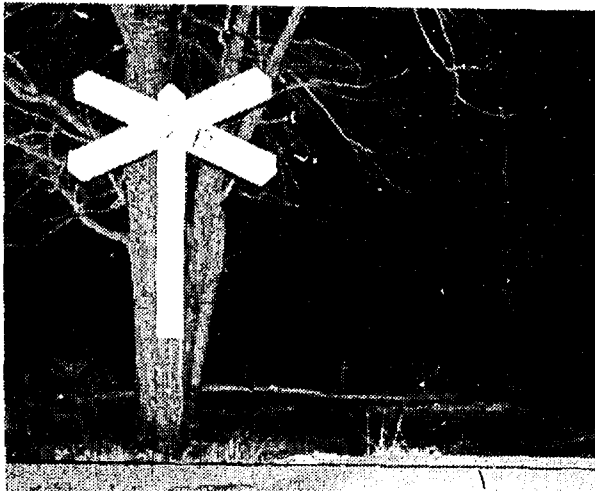

Mrs. Manzy said that young Cramer had been lying on the railroad track. It was not known whether he was thrown from the car or collapsed on the tracks following the collision.

"It's a wonder he didn't get caught under the train," said Robert Potter of Slateford, who was the second person to arrive at the scene.

Potter's wife is a nurse at the General Hospital and she also took blankets to the scene to keep the injured man comfortable.

Small crossing
Portland Police Chief Jesse Felker, who investigated, said Cramer's car and the Erie-Lackawanna train met simultaneously at the small crossing not far from the Slateford Hotel.

The railroad train was

Scene of accident at Slateford crossing backing from the Delaware Water Gap switch point to Portland.

Felker said the corner of the caboose crashed with the left corner of the small car. Impact of the collision spun the car around and off the side of the track. Felker said the caboose was about 30 train-car lengths away from the impact scene when the train finally stopped.

The Portland and Vicinity Ambulance, which was called by Mrs. Manzy, had taken Cramer to the hospital before Felker arrived.

Felker said that the impact may have knocked Cramer out of the car.

Joseph Heffron, believed to be from Scranton, was engineer on the train and Lewis Humphreys, also from Scranton, was the conductor.

Cramer, manager of the R.C. Cramer Lumber Co., yard in Portland was on his way to a contractor who lives nearby.

The Slateford Crossing is just a few yards between old Route 611 and the Delaware River. Old Route 611 runs through the center of Slateford.

Cramer is married and the father of three children.

Nixon doubles business with hand shaking tour

President lunches with queen

LONDON (AP) — President Nixon blended the solemn business of state Tuesday with a campaigner's rollicking swing through London, shaking hands with Englishmen in the chilly, misty streets.

He lunched with the queen, discussed world affairs with the prime minister and mingled with crowds outside Buckingham Palace.

In private conference with Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Nixon spoke of U.S. dedication to European unity, to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to British entry into the Common Market.

"Mr. Nixon said all the things we could have wished him to say," reported one British official.

Nixon thus obliquely signaled once again U.S. opposition to the reported plan of French President Charles de Gaulle for a realignment of European force.

He impressed British officials with his announced resolve to consult the European allies on summit talks with the Russians. British informants said they felt Nixon was thinking in terms of several journeys to Europe.

Outside the halls of government—and the palace of Britain's royalty—Nixon again and again brushed aside his ring of security guards to mingle with crowds and shake hands.

He conferred with Britain's leaders at No. 10 Downing St., lunched with Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace, placed a wreath at the tomb of Britain's unknown warrior in Westminster Abbey and paid a surprise visit to Parliament where he sat as a spectator in the House of Commons. He is the first American president to attend such a session while in office.

Czech pupil burns self to death

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

PRAGUE — A high school student burned himself to death today — the 21st anniversary of the Communist take-over in Czechoslovakia — in Wenceslas Square in protest against the Soviet occupation.

An interior ministry spokesman was quoted by the state news agency as saying that letters left behind by Jan Zajic "indicated there were political reasons for his suicide."

Man injured
An unidentified man was injured while attempting to extinguish the student's clothes, which had been doused with cleaning fluid and set alight in a courtyard off the main Prague square early Tuesday afternoon.

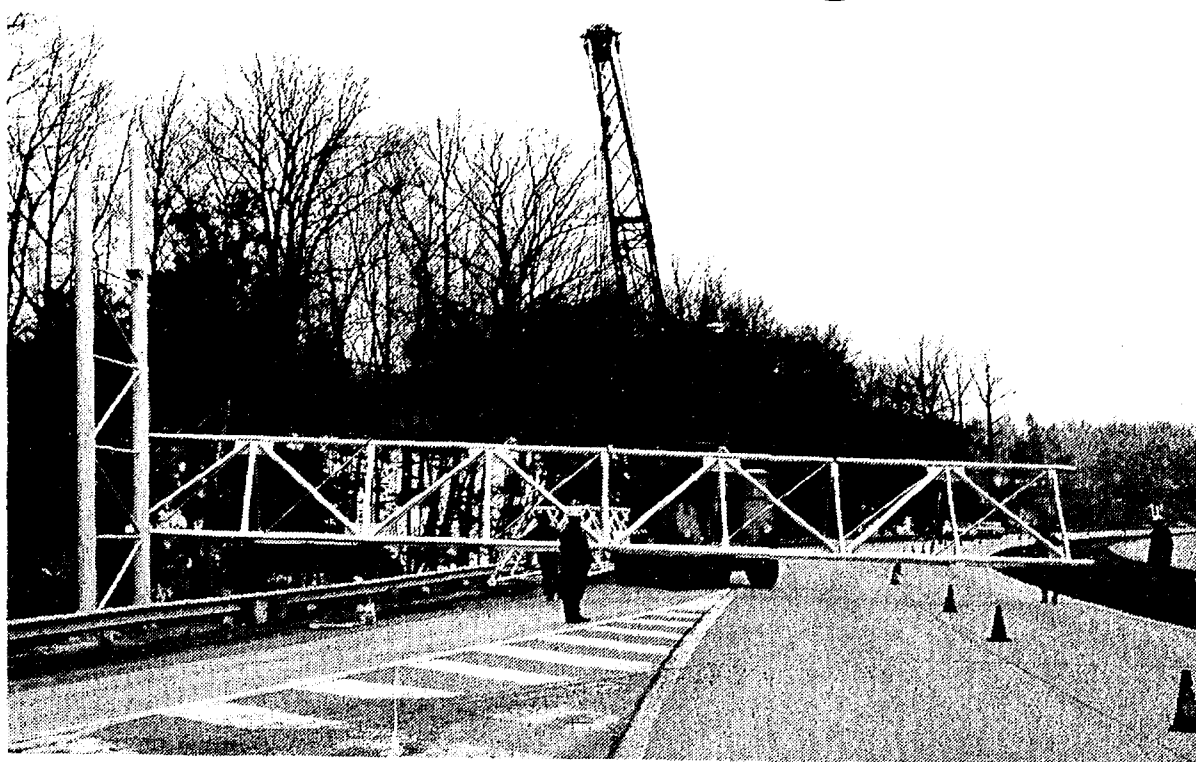

Informed sources said that Zajic, described as an 18 or 19-year-old youth studying at Sumpker in Northern Moravia, left a note identifying himself as "human torch number two."

The first was Jan Palach, a university student. His self-immolation on Jan. 16, less than 100 yards away from Tuesday's suicide, set off massive street demonstrations of sympathy and one of the stormiest periods in Czechoslovakia since the Soviet-led invasion last August.

New blasts rock Middle East

JERUSALEM (AP) — Explosions rocked a market in the Israeli city of Lydda and the British consulate in East Jerusalem Tuesday, probably setting the stage for more reprisals against Arab nations.

Before the bombs went off, Egypt had announced a state of emergency throughout the country in expectation that Israel would strike in answer to previous Arab terrorist attacks.

State exploring problems in colleges

By BOB GROFF

Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania Governor Raymond P. Shafer met recently with approximately 35 Pennsylvania college and university presidents for the purpose of exploring the problems surrounding campus demonstrations.

East Stroudsburg State College president Dr. Frank D. Sills was in attendance at that meeting.

Dr. Sills said Gov. Shafer indicated great interest in cooperating with the colleges and universities in an effort to maintain the stability necessary for the state's institutions of higher learning to carry out their respective measures.

According to Dr. Sills, the governor also indicated his concern for understanding the

Series of documents point to RFK's death

LOS ANGELES — A series of documents calling for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, in the handwriting of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, were introduced Tuesday in the murder trial of the young Jordanian immigrant.

Some of the papers came from three notebooks that were found by police in the bedroom of Sirhan's Pasadena, Calif., home. Others were discovered in a trash can in the back yard of the house.

Discussion of the documents in the courtroom set off an angry outburst from Sirhan, who rose from his seat and shouted at Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Waler. He was quickly restrained by sheriff's deputies.

Challenges judge

"Wait a minute, your honor, they haven't been admitted into evidence yet," the slight, dark-haired defendant cried out before being pushed back into his chair. He whispered, "let me go, let me go," as the deputies hauled him.

One of the pages from Sirhan's notebooks, dated May 18, 1968, 19 days before the Senator was killed, bore the following notation at the top.

"My determination to eliminate RFK is becoming more the more of an unshakable obsession."

The rest of the page bore the phrases, "RFK must die," "RFK must be killed," and "Robert F. Kennedy must be assassinated. The last phrase was repeated about 20 times.

Near the bottom of the page were the words, "Robert F. Kennedy must be assassinated before 5 June 1968."

fire tragedy claimed the lives of 13 persons who died in a tenement fire in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn on Jan. 9, 1968.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. "It will take us days to find out what caused it," said fire department chief John T. O'Hagan.

However, O'Hagan and Mayor John V. Lindsay, who went to the scene of the blaze, said two gallon cans of an unidentified flammable liquid were found on the third floor of the building, near where the fire is believed to have erupted.

"They were open and empty," O'Hagan said, "and we have to assume that they contributed to it. They undoubtedly contributed to the intensity of the fire."

Snow covers New England

BOSTON (AP) — New Englanders struggled Tuesday to rid themselves of the effects of another immense snow storm that left several persons dead, hundreds stranded and thousands without heat and electricity.

The number known to have died as a result of the storm stood at 12 late Tuesday. Most of the deaths were due to heart attacks brought on by exertion.

Human bombs

Enemy offensive spreading

SAIGON (AP) — The new enemy offensive spread Tuesday to near the demilitarized zone where hundreds of North Vietnamese behind suicide squads acting as human bombs smashed into two U.S. Marine artillery bases, all but wrecking one Leatherneck company.

In the heaviest fighting on the northern frontier since the bombing halt of North Vietnam Nov. 1, the North Vietnamese were repulsed in hand-to-hand combat but still shelled the bases as night fell.

The biggest attack came at Fire Base Russell, two miles south of the buffer zone dividing North and South Vietnam. In the early morning darkness, the enemy opened up with an intense mortar barrage. Then came the suicide squads.

The Marine commander at Fire Base Russell reported that enemy sappers taped 25-pound bundles of TNT on their backs, wrapped the detonating cord around their chests, and then charged to blast lanes through the Marine barbed wire defenses.

"At least two were wounded as they reached the lines of the perimeter and became entangled in the wire," he said. "When Marines went toward them at first light they pulled the detonating device and blew themselves up."

The Marines on the hilltop base lowered the muzzles of their 105MM howitzers to eye-level sighting and fired point blank at the attackers but could not turn them back.

As the North Vietnamese burst into the perimeter, the Marines rose and met them in personal duels, the commander reported.

The Marines reported 21 North Vietnamese were killed in fighting through the early morning hours.

Belfast leader won't quit

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service
BELFAST, Ireland — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill declared Tuesday he had no intention of resigning, even though he had failed in Monday's general election to obtain the mandate he had sought for civil rights reform.

The question of Unionist Party leadership is something to be decided by the Parliamentary Party, he said at a crowded news conference. A party meeting is expected within a week.

O'Neill cited figures that suggested an arithmetic victory for himself against his critics in the Protestant-dominated party. He is criticized for arrogant leadership as well as for his hasty concessions to demands of the Roman Catholic minority.

Despite the arithmetic, most observers believe that the Prime Minister is in a precarious position as far as his political future is concerned because of the failure to win a decisive victory on his own election gamble. However, there is no obvious successor.

The final election results showed that the Unionist Party had continued its hold on the government that began with the first provincial parliament in Belfast in 1921.

The Unionists won 36 of the 52 seats in the House of Commons, a loss of one.

But the size and the makeup of the rump group, which includes two former cabinet ministers, might make stable government impossible.

Shapp leads opposition to strip mine dumping

HARRISBURG (AP) — Representatives of Pennsylvania's northeastern coal regions and a former gubernatorial candidate all agreed Tuesday, that abandoned strip mines were no place to dump refuse.

"Now the shades of yesterday's coal barons again stalk the anthracite area," said Milton Shapp, who was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor in 1966. "The new proposals are advanced in the name of sanitary land fill and cheap solid waste disposal for hard-pressed cities, but there is little altruism involved."

ROSALIE

By JOSEPH RUSSOTTO
Fort Lauderdale, Florida

"Did you know that Steeplechase has been torn down?"

My wife and I looked at our visitor in surprise. No, we had not heard this news since moving from New York City to Florida several years ago.

We were flooded with sudden memories of this old amusement park at Coney Island: the exciting aromas of pizza, pop corn and frankfurters along Surf Avenue. We could hear the strains of the haunting carnival music.

Impulsively, I turned to my wife and said, "Remember the day we took Rosalie to Steeplechase?"

She nodded, and simultaneously we looked toward the bedroom where Rosalie, our pretty 25-year-old daughter, was sleeping. A victim of cerebral palsy since birth, she had been unable to talk, walk, or use her hands. She had to be fed, dressed and carried like a child. Her only means of communication was through her big, beautiful "talking" eyes.

One spring day when she was 4, Rosalie made me understand that she wanted to go to Steeplechase, and without thinking, I promised we would take her.

Then I was almost sorry for saying so, for I began to realize how difficult it would be. The trip meant hiring a taxi, taking along a folding wheelchair,

Lenten Guideposts

Coney Island's big day

lifting Rosalie in and out of it, taking care that she didn't pass out from exhaustion, and facing the stares of curious children and adults.

I prayed for enough strength to go through with it, and for Rosalie, that all would go well with her.

When we arrived at the park, we found it bustling with people and activity. Dread started to come over me as I realized I would have to hold Rosalie while waiting in line for the rides. She would have to suffer the stares of the others in line while enduring the long waits.

Something Wonderful
But then, as if a sudden answer to my prayer, something wonderful happened. The day became more and more beautiful.

Admission to Steeplechase Park was by combination ticket, with numbers designating the various rides. The rides were presided over by elderly men — wearing red trousers, jacket and visored cap — who would punch the tickets for admission to the rides.

Our first stop was the merry-go-round, and we took a place at the end of the long waiting line. But we had hardly entered the queue when the gray-haired ticket puncher spotted us and came immediately to our rescue.

He let us park the wheelchair, with Rosalie in it, near the exit gate and asked us to wait till the ride in progress was over. That way, we would bypass the waiting line. I would be spared the ordeal of holding Rosalie, and we were assured of getting seats immediately.

Waved and smiled
Rosalie thoroughly enjoyed the ride. As we got off, the old man waved to us and smiled.

One of the most popular rides at Steeplechase was one in which chairs were attached to cables and suspended from a rotating center post. As the "flying chairs" gathered momentum they would gradually rise from a vertical to an almost horizontal position.

Because I thought it was too strenuous for Rosalie, I wheeled her chair quickly past it, but she stiffened and screamed. She wanted to get on the chairs.

Rosalie's eyes were fixed on me pleadingly. It was a big moment in her life — an escape, for a while at least, from her completely shut-in life. I smiled at her and she had her answer.

Free rides
Once again, an elderly ticket puncher sized up the situation. A few minutes later, my wife was on one chair and I was on another — holding Rosalie on my lap.

As we went from ride to ride some of the men didn't even bother to punch our tickets. They invariably allowed us to stay on for free additional rides. The smiles exchanged between Rosalie and the pleasant old men added to our day's happiness.

When it became obvious Rosalie was getting tired, we headed for home. The smile on Rosalie's face never left her as we rode away. For one day, the sadness in her heart had lifted completely.

My wife and I looked back toward the sights and sounds of Coney Island, realizing how beautiful Rosalie's day had been because of those marvelously kind old gentlemen. It seemed as though they were all saying to Rosalie: "Sweetheart, we wish we could make you better, but we can't. But at least we can help make your day a happy one."

And we will always remember that they did just that.

Ike's gain 'remarkable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors reported Tuesday that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's "progress is little short of remarkable" as he continued to recuperate "smoothly" from major abdominal surgery.

If all continues to go well with the 78-year-old general, officials at the Army's Walter Reed General Hospital said they planned to end Tuesday night the round-the-clock press watch that has been maintained since Eisenhower was stricken over the weekend.

A further indication of the five-star general's progress was the disclosure that his son, John Eisenhower, was returning to his Phoenixville, Pa., home. The former President's wife is remaining at the hospital and is seeing him at intervals.

Despite the optimistic tone of Tuesday evening's announcement and the general air of relaxation, Eisenhower's doctors have stressed that he "will have to be watched especially carefully during the next two weeks" lest complications develop from the surgery to relieve an intestinal blockage.

Gen. Hughes said that "Gen. Eisenhower's eventual condition should be better than before his surgery in that the adhesions which have caused repeated attacks of gastrointestinal upsets in the past have now been eliminated."

Lloyds plan to admit fair sex

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service
LONDON — Lloyds of London, the world's leading society of private insurance underwriters, will admit women next year for the first time in its long history, it was announced.

Next January they will be entitled to membership in the insurance organization, whose history goes back to the 17th century. The society is believed to have been founded by Edward Lloyd, who owned a London coffee-house. Lloyds achieved its worldwide reputation because its underwriters took risks no other insurance organization would take.

Women will be admitted to the category of members who underwrite through an agent but do not personally transact business in the Lloyds market; the agent will be male.

In commenting on the decision to admit women, the evening news, Britain's best-selling afternoon newspaper, said today: "It's their money the men are after."

Bell strike takes place in Scranton

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Some 180 Bell Telephone installers walked off their jobs here Tuesday in a labor dispute over suspension of a union member.

Members of Local 34, Pennsylvania Federation of Telephone Workers struck Bell Telephone after a switchboard installer reportedly was suspended for refusing to climb a pole.

The union claims it has a 30-year verbal agreement with management that installers in the Private Branch Exchange (PBX) division do not have to climb poles.

Bell Telephone denies the agreement.

About 10 days ago 35 PBX installers walked out under a similar incident.

The choir has been training for this tour since last September. Dr. George Lynn, music director of Westminster Choir College, directs the touring choir.

Bucks JP fines Dr. Elias on health violation count

TRAUMBAUERSVILLE — Dr. Gabriel Elias, owner of the Tobyhanna Wherry Housing Project, Tuesday morning was fined $50 and costs for a health violation in his Warmminster Heights housing project in Bucks County.

Trumbaueville Justice of the Peace Kathryn Stump found Dr. Elias guilty following an hour-long court hearing. Justice Stump said the court costs charged against Dr. Elias total $11.

The Bucks County Health Department charged Elias with violating Section Four of the Bucks County Health Department rules at his Warmminster Heights war-time housing development.

The specific section for which Elias was charged regulates sewerage disposal, decaying matter, stagnant water and certain other health nuisances.

Warmminster Township Housing Inspector Joseph Knox Tuesday morning testified that accumulated trash had piled up at the development.

Elias was charged by the Health Department on January 9. Elias was not represented by an attorney at the hearing. Two Health Department officials also appeared and testified.

Elias is also under fire by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) for "serious maintenance deficiencies" at the Tobyhanna Wherry Housing Project.

The project, also known as Tobyhanna Village, has been criticized ever since Elias became owner in 1964.

The FHA last week told Congressman Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., that it will initiate legal action against Elias for the "serious maintenance deficiencies."

The FHA decided to initiate legal action following the completion of a recent inspection at Tobyhanna Village.

A high level Army inspection tour was made recently at the village and the Army officials cited "definite" fire hazards due to indifferent management at the 201 unit housing project.

Elias was low bidder in 1964 in obtaining the mortgage for the housing development from the FHA.

The FHA previously has been hesitant to press Elias "too hard" in correcting the deficiencies for fear that he would pay off the principal due on the mortgage, informed sources said. Once the principal is paid, the FHA would no longer have control over the Tobyhanna Village Project.

New York field trip scheduled

NEWFOUNDLAND — An educational trip to New York City is being planned by the United Methodist Youth Fellowship of the South Sterling Charge for March 22 and 23, with the group leaving early Saturday morning and returning late Sunday afternoon.

The purpose of the trip will be served by a visit to the United Nations; the United Nations Church Center; Teen Challenge, the headquarters of the Rev. David Wilkerson, whose appearance at the Vacationland Ministries program at the Newfoundland Arts Center this past Summer ignited special interest in his project in New York.

The group will worship Sunday morning at the largest church in the city, the Riverside Drive United Methodist Church, and will visit Radio City and the new chapels at Kennedy International Airport.

Cost of the trip will be $16 per person plus transportation. At least 15 young people are expected to make the trip. Advisors and leaders of the UMYF are seeking parents who will drive and act as counselors during the visit to the city.

Wet road causes crash

MILFORD — Slippery road conditions on Route 209 caused a three truck collision early Sunday which resulted in $4,000 damage.

State Police at Milford said Monday that no injuries resulted from the crash. The accident occurred at 4:30 a.m. Sunday on Route 209, about four miles south of Milford.

No description of the accident was available. Drivers of the three trucks were: James D. Westmoreland of Cleveland, Ga.; Samuel Reimold of Seven Valleys R.D. 1; John W. Byerly of York Springs R.D. 2.

Riding club plans spring horse show

NEWFOUNDLAND — One of the earliest signs of spring in the Poconos is the beginning of plans for the Spring Horse Show, sponsored by the Southern Wayne Trail Riders.

Discussion of the show was held during a dinner meeting of the club at the Country Hearth Restaurant at Blueberry Hill, South Sterling, with David Lipe leading the planning session and business meeting.

The show is tentatively set for May 31 at the Horse Show Ring in Newfoundland, pending acceptance of that date by the American Horse Show Association. The Horse Show at the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair, set for August 29, was also discussed.

After talking over a new point system designed to encourage active participation in meetings, events and shows, the club voted to adopt the system which will include the awarding of trophies at the end of each year during the annual Christmas party.

By-laws revised The by-laws of the club were read as revised, and adopted by the membership. New membership cards were distributed to paid-up members. The club also has a new emblem, designed by a committee headed by George Frederici, of Waymart.

The club also held a special session at Shalom Acres, the home of James and Doris Dalling, Lake Ariel, where a film was shown by Dick Plotts, of the extension service, on "Training a Horse for Quarter Horse Racing." Trail Riders were joined by 4-H Club members for the evening to see the film. Refreshments were served to the 40 members of the two groups present.

The next business session will be held on March 7 at 8 p.m. at a place to be announced. The hostess for the evening will then select an additional night and place for a social meeting of the group.

Oil company fined $500

BANGOR — The Tidewater Pipe Co., Ltd., has been fined $500 and made restitution for 2,100 fish which were killed when oil seeped from a pipeline and polluted Little Bushkill Creek.

The creek was polluted last January 17 when oil leaked from the pipeline.

The company also paid an additional $205 for cost of the dead fish, according to Harold Corbin, chief enforcement officer for the State Fish Commission.

The stream is expected to be reconditioned and restocked to permit fishing at the opening of the season April 12.

Ike wins another battle

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has won another battle. He has survived his fourth major operation, despite a history of seven heart attacks and one stroke.

Eisenhower, who served two terms as president of the United States, and led the allied forces to victory in Europe during World War II, is a masterpiece of courage and stamina for the remainder of the world to emulate.

The most recent surgery occurred at Walter Reed Hospital Sunday night and was for the removal of an abdominal obstruction. Ordinarily this type of surgery isn't considered highly dangerous, but with a patient in a weakened physical condition, such as Eisenhower, it was considered "highly risky."

But, as he has in the past, the former president of the United States, allied commander, Columbia University president and West Point graduate came through in the best tradition of a soldier, the life for which he was trained and the life he has lived to the letter of the word.

A lesser man than Dwight D. Eisenhower would have answered the last call to formation long ago. But, Ike lives as he fought the war — with all his strength.

The two-hour and 20-minute operation Sunday was just another of the many battles that have been fought and won by the 78-year-old general — against odds that at times took on the appearance of impossible.

Ike's life hangs by a thread of day-to-day balance. But, when the former president is no longer able to sustain life itself, it will be known that death won only after its toughest struggle.

Numbers important

The Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce is currently planning for its annual membership campaign. It has named Jesse R. S. Flory as chairman for the drive and has indicated that it is geared for its biggest membership effort in history.

This plan deserves the community's entire support. Flory has called for an increased membership and said, "The more voices heard, the better ideas that will come forth."

It has long been a feeling that the Chamber of Commerce hasn't had a diversified enough membership and it certainly didn't reach into all sections of the area.

The active membership hasn't given the chamber full commercial coverage in the area. The chamber hasn't had the opinion of industries in all sections of the community.

The larger the membership the better the community product. The wider the area covered the greater depth available for development.

Industrial attraction would be better and development prospects greater if Monroe County was treated as one municipality in the minds of Chamber of Commerce directors, rather than a group of sections.

A stronger working agreement with the West End and the Pocono Lake-Blakeslee areas would add greatly to the scope of the chamber and to its growth potential.

The answer is in the number of members and areas covered.

'Poor man' candidate

Muskie raising new electoral question

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Hawthorne News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine) is raising a disturbing question about the American electoral system as he travels about the country on a back-breaking speaking schedule. Simply stated, it is: How can a "poor man" run for president of the United States?

In Muskie's case, the better question might be: How can a "poor man" afford to find out if he wants to run for president? For this is the dilemma in which the 1968 Democratic vice presidential nominee finds himself at the moment.

He is exploring the presidency — and that costs money. Once you get your party's nomination, the money to finance the campaign somehow rolls in. It's the party that goes in debt, not the candidate.

Today, unlike Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Muskie operates without private resources. He will share in the new congressional pay raise but the $42,500 salary will not pay for more help in the office or for professors to prepare speeches and background papers.

This is a luxury item that can only be financed by non-Senate income or an "angel" who wants to be associated with a winner. There are, reportedly, 27 millionaires in the Senate to whom this presents no problem. But by standards of almost one-third of the Senate, Muskie — with a net worth of $106,468 as of last October — has a political poverty question that can't be easily solved.

"I can't afford an organization," Muskie lamented at a news conference last week. "It's quite an awesome undertaking for a man without independent means and it becomes more awesome, the more I contemplate it."

It's assumed at the Capitol that someone has suggested a "slush fund" to Muskie to support his ambitious plan to travel and speak out on a wide range of issues. But the senator cannot set up fund-raising committees without now declaring himself a candidate for the 1972 nomination.

This would undoubtedly be a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act and the Senate's Code of Ethics and Muskie is believed already to have rejected the idea of subsidization by wealthy donors, on purely moral grounds.

And so, Muskie will take the only practical course open to him at the moment and accept as many of the national speaking engagements as he can handle. He is not lacking for invitations. They are arriving at an average of 600 a month.

In the past six weeks, the Senator has accepted enough engagements to pay some of his personal bills of the 1968 campaign, mostly for a whole new wardrobe for himself and his large family. He gets his expenses, of course, and in some instances honorariums of $1,000 to $2,000 for helping to draw a crowd to fund-raising dinners and public gatherings.

As of today, Muskie is fully-scheduled on a day-by-day basis through March and into April. He must allow time to preside over two subcommittees and to work with his beleaguered staff to catch up with the tens of thousands of letters that have poured into the office since last November.

Many people who had not heard of the angular Yankee before last fall are writing him now to ask his advice on purely local problems.

How's your camel, Rex?

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — "In asking for a series of meetings with the European-man-in-the-street during his visit abroad," a gentleman from Belleville, N.J., writes, "President Nixon is undoubtedly motivated by the best of intentions. He is such a busy man that it has probably never occurred to him that these meetings are going to place agonizing strains on the unfortunate people chosen to meet him."

"The man-in-the-street is, with very rare exceptions, simply not up to meeting presidents of the United States, kings, movie stars, tycoons or anybody else who qualifies as one of the lions of the human animal kingdom."

"I can attest from painful experience to the discomforts of having to meet with a lion. Some years ago during a visit to the United States by the King of Qat, I was approached one day in the street by two men who said they represented the state department and noted that I seemed to be a man in the street."

"Upon conceding that I was, I was informed that the king had expressed the desire to meet with the American man-in-the-street and that I should appear for the meeting two days later."

"My elation was intense and, naturally, I was the center of envy in the neighborhood, which was very pleasant until a neighbor asked what I intended to talk about with the king. I said I would talk about the same things I talked about to the neighbors at the Saturday night pinocle parties — the stupidity of the children's teachers, the rising price of movie tickets, the treatment of bunnies."

"Well, I had no sooner canvassed my supply of conversation than I realized that it would never do."

"Kings, I realized, were probably accustomed to talking about sieges, presumptions, dukes and false pretenders to the throne, all subjects on which my conversational resources were meager. Alone in my room that night, I tried a few conversational gambits. 'Lifted any big sieges lately, king?' 'What's the presumptuous-duck picture in Qat these days?'"

"Obviously, I was in trouble. I had a friend in Schenectady who had once met with Walter Lippmann, so I called him for advice."

"Whatever you do, don't drink before the meeting," he said. "I did, and by the time I met Walter Lippmann I couldn't remember a line of my prepared conversation, which was about a plan I'd desperately cooked up that morning for improving the Schenectady bus service. All I could think of was to ask him

It takes one secretary alone to handle the invitations that come to the office. But the basic staff is no larger than it was at this time last year.

In hopes of reducing the pile, eight or 10 wives and Muskie friends in Washington are volunteering to come by the office three nights a week to help answer letters and assist with the filing. The Senator actually couldn't use much more help in his present quarters because there wouldn't be room to maneuver.

Although he feels disadvantaged by the financial problem, Muskie tells friends he believes he can lick it; at least, it's worth a try. He wants not only to address party gatherings but also to help "democratize" Democratic organizations and appeal for electioneering reforms and greater participation in politics by the seemingly disaffected young.

"This mission, along with a desire to have the fullest possible exposure in as many states as possible, will preoccupy Muskie for the foreseeable future. He may find out, in the process, whether a man of small means can even dream serious dreams about moving into the White House."

Greetings, Mr. Nixon

(C) 1969 New York Times News Service

LONDON — Richard M. Nixon had scarcely set foot on continental soil when he was assured by King Baudouin that he had landed in "A Europe which, despite the differences accumulated by history, is advancing on the road to unity."

Nixon then proceeded to London where he was immediately told by Prime Minister Wilson that the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia had shown Europe the need for "a unity in political as in economic terms which will reject narrow, inward-looking attitudes."

In fact, the president and his jet fleet had dropped down through gloomy British skies to a London whose politicians were talking of little but the latest — and fiercest — dispute with General De Gaulle; and just across the channel lay a continent that, in any number of "narrow, inward-looking" ways, mocked Baudouin's brave words.

The angry dispute between Paris and London over what De Gaulle did, or did not, say to Christopher Soames, the British ambassador to France, and over whether the British did, or did not, overreact has at least restored this useful if grim perspective. Whatever Nixon might have done to produce a new atmosphere of European unity not only will not now be done; but it can be more clearly seen that it would have been illusory anyway.

Hopes unmeasured

How large Nixon's private hopes might have been is hard to tell. Before entering the American-Soviet arms talks made virtually obligatory by the nonproliferation treaty, it was obviously useful at least to observe all the forms of consultation with the European allies. It was just as useful to soothe European sensibilities that had been scarred by Lyndon Johnson's focus on Asia.

Beyond these forms, it was believed in the White House that the Johnson and Kennedy administrations had not done all they might have to keep the peace with General De Gaulle; and since the general had been at pains to make clear that he thought well of Nixon, there was some real hope in Washington for building a much stronger relationship with the French president.

More in question

That hope may still flicker, since Nixon can try to take the line in Paris this weekend that the Soames affair is a European matter into which he does not wish to intrude. This will require an extremely straight face, De Gaulle having suggested — at least in the British version — that the Common Market ought to evolve into a loose free-trade association, with an "inner political ring" of France, Britain, West Germany and Italy — and that NATO and the United States should thus disappear from Europe.

But more is in question than the substance of this proposal — which, interestingly enough, obviously aroused considerable interest in the House of Commons, when Michael Stewart, the foreign secretary, answered questions Monday on the British part in the affair. De Gaulle's motive in offering such a scheme on the eve of Nixon's tour, whether there is any connection between the two, the failure of the British to consult Nixon either on the issues raised or on how they proposed to respond — all these are questions bound to haunt the president and his hosts in every country they visit.

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Homosexual problem

The homosexual plays an important and constructive role in every phase of our society. Many are identified with the creative arts—music, painting, literature, architecture, designing, and leave a permanent mark on the intellectual growth and accomplishments of our nation.

Homosexuals have become the standard target by the inept and mediocre person and by those who exploit them as the objects of witless and naive humor.

The complex psychological reasons for homosexuality have been explained by every conceivable school of psychiatry. They all differ; each school vainly believing that its answer is the only definite one.

Dr. Charles W. Socarides, a leading psychiatrist in New York City, now calls for the establishment of a National Center for Sexual Rehabilitation. Here doctors can be trained to deal with every phase of the homosexual's problem when they voluntarily apply for dignified study. Dr. Socarides believes that homosexuality must be considered a mental disorder that can be treated and cured in more than 50 per cent of the cases if it is sincerely considered a medical disorder. He believes that homosexuality can be formed by very early psychological damage, perhaps even in the first three years of life. A center for the total study of the total human being who incidentally is a homosexual, is imperative for the many who plea for such help.

The Pennsylvania Story

Rough road ahead

HARRISBURG — There is a touch of irony in the fact that Pennsylvania's Department of Highways today is classified as one of the most irritating departments on Capitol Hill.

The irony lies in the fact that in "strategic theory" it should be in just the opposite posture — after all, it has one of the largest, most costly and most elaborate "public relations" conglomerations of any department on Capitol Hill.

In theory the object of this publicity mill (or any P.R. operation for that matter) is to develop a "good" name, a happy name, for the department — the picture of paternal graciousness, loved by one and all.

And yet, notwithstanding this taxpayer-supported approach, it hasn't quite worked out that way by any stretch of the imagination.

It is, of course, an inadvertency that the department is accused by many a landowner in the way of a new highway, of being arrogant and dogmatic in the securing of right-of-way settlements. Actually the department in most cases bends over backward in this area — insofar as its legal rights are concerned — to accommodate the about-to-be displaced landowner.

But the monstrosity that is the Department of Highways has developed into an irritating agency in other ways, particularly insofar as many lawmakers are concerned.

To illustrate the point: Last year when the Legislature refused to go along with doubling motor license fees as the department and the State Highway Commission had recommended, the department apparently decided to take matters into its own hands with the attitude of: We'll fix 'em (meaning of course the Legislature) for not bowing to our demands.

So what happened? Next thing lawmakers knew they found themselves being blamed for this or that local highway project being "abandoned" or "shelved", because the lawmakers wouldn't go along with the license fee increase to provide the funds.

This strategy has thrown the department highway publicity contraption into high gear issuing reams of (obviously department-biased) "news" releases pointing up these "shelved" projects because lawmakers didn't hastily knuckle under to immediately provide the funds for the highway projects.

The point in all this however revolves around the question of how a project can be shelved — when it was never financially authorized in the first place?

As the department freely and blunderingly admits, the funds never were at hand for the so-called "shelved" projects — inasmuch as they were based on the never approved license fee increase.

As any bureaucratic idiot knows, projects cannot be firmly programmed until funds are available — and if funds haven't been made available, how can a project be classified as "shelved" when it was never on the shelf in the first place?

This plan of attack (regarded by some as cunning P.R. strategy) now has placed lawmakers in awkward posture with many a constituent, who oftentimes berates the legislator with: "Well, I see you're to blame for having that new highway project cut out!"

Of course the lawmaker is being blamed for a project that never was a firm (funded) project in the first place — and which falls within the category of hundreds of projects of various and sundry departments (quietly) programmed to the year 2,000 during which time funds hopefully may become available. They haven't been "lost" however, because they were never really funded programs in the first place.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

The bidding:

West North East South
Pass 1♥ Pass 1♠
Pass 3♥ Pass 4♦
Pass 5♦ Pass 5NT
Pass 7♦ Dble

Opening lead — seven of hearts.

This dramatic deal occurred in the intercity match between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Montreal during the 1968 summer nationals staged in Minneapolis. The 72-board match ended in an exact tie, and it was only after an 8-board playoff that the Twin Cities team finally emerged triumphant by 4 international match points.

The Canadians lost despite a huge gain they registered early in the match on this hand.

The bidding went as shown when Montreal held the North-South cards. Five notrump by South was the grand slam force and required North to jump to seven diamonds with two of the three top trump honors.

North duly obliged by responding seven diamonds, which was certainly a reasonable contract with the North-South cards. At this stage East interjected a double, a conventional call directing West to make an unusual lead. East naturally hoped to get a spade lead to put a quick end to the Canadians' grand slam aspirations.

But West misread the double and led a heart. As a result, Montreal chalked up a plus of 2,470 points instead of a 200-point minus. In the great majority of cases when the defender not on lead doubles a slam conventionally, the unusual lead he hopes to get is the suit dummy bid first — in the present case, hearts. But this is by no means an inviolable rule, and it does seem that West, with a holding of six spades, should have recognized the true situation and found the killing spade lead.

At the second table, where Minneapolis held the North-South cards, the bidding went:

West North East South
Pass 1♥ Pass 1♠
Pass 3♥ Pass 3♠
Pass 4♦ Pass 5♦
Pass 5♥ Pass 5♣
Pass 6♦ Pass 7♦

This contract, surprisingly, went down only one!

Miss Donna Miller bride of Gerald S. Lee

EAST STROUDSBURG — The sanctuary of the Grace Lutheran Church of East Stroudsburg was the setting Saturday, Feb. 15 for the mid-winter wedding of Miss Donna Mae Miller to Gerald S. Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lee of 76 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Miller of R.D. 2, East Stroudsburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of white organza over taffeta with Alencon lace highlights. The lace bodice featured full-length flared sleeves of Alencon lace. The tiny lace collar was mandarin style. The A-lines of the gown, lace and organza over taffeta, had handclipped appliques attached to the skirt. Similar appliques adorned the Watteau lines of the detachable chapel train. A triple coronet of pearls, crystals and iridescents held her three-quarter length veil of imported French silk illusion. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white carnations with a center of pale yellow carnations.

Her honor attendant, her sister, Mrs. Thomas Barr of East Stroudsburg, carried a similar bouquet of pink carnations. Her floor-length sheath gown of pink crepe had an Empire midriff panel of rose pink. A rose pink Dior bow held her pale pink face veil.

Thomas P. Lee of 76 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Donald Lee of East Stroudsburg, and Clayton Ruff, Jr., of Bangor.

Miss Bonnie Mikels at the organ console provided nuptial melodies prior to the ceremony and accompanied the Rev. William F. Wunder who sang Mallot's "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

White carnations graced the altar vases of the church for the single-ring, 2 p.m. ceremony which was attended by family and friends of the bridal couple. White carnations marked the church pews.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Miller chose a winter white ensemble with brown accessories. She received a red carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a candy pink double knit suit and chose black accessories. She was presented with a corsage of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lee and members of the wedding party drove to visit the bride's grandparents who had been unable to attend the wedding. The wedding caravan visited Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of N. Second St., Stroudsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Phillips of 339 Merton St., East Stroudsburg.

A buffet reception for 150 guests was held in the new Stroud Township Firehall, Analomink. The bridal table was centered by a wedding cake with four tiers, each of which rose above the first on tall colonnades. A miniature bride and bridegroom topped the cake.

Following the dinner the "Pocono Promenaders" provided music for round and square dancing.

For a wedding tour to Niagara Falls, Mrs. Lee chose a blue and white knit ensemble and wore a corsage of red carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee will reside at 76 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg in their newly furnished apartment.

Mrs. Lee, a 1965 graduate of East Stroudsburg Area High School is employed by Marquette Inc. of Bangor. Mr. Lee, a 1963 graduate of East Stroudsburg Area High School is employed by McGraw-Hill Inc., East Stroudsburg.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Growing up in an all-girl family, I hadn't realized that little boys used to wear panty-waists, too, but in the olden days when elastic was much less dependable, it was the safest way to hold up underdrawers as well as the long stockings both sexes wore.

In our lunch counter reminiscences, two more words came up that are rarely heard any more: darns and patches. It isn't that material is more durable or children any less hard on their clothes.

In our affluent society, things aren't mended or repaired — they're discarded. But it didn't used to be that way as those of us who limped around in stockings too-carelessly darned can remember.

Boys had more patches than girls, particularly on the knees and seat of the pants, but neither darns now patches were considered a sign of disgrace but were the pride of frugal mothers. Remember darning eggs that used to be slipped into heels or toes to get a nice unpuckered darn?

Making a big jump to the immediate present, Vicki and Spike Young of Merry Hill Lodge had new proof of this small world business when vacationing on Grand Bahama Island, they went to Sunday morning services at a Lutheran Church there where they were welcomed at the door by Dick Farley, former golf pro at Shawnee, now at King Inn in Freeport.

Monroe reverses state trend

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Contrary to the statewide trend, more children are enrolled in Monroe County elementary schools this year than a year ago, according to a report by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Overall the climb for Monroe County is from an elementary enrollment of 5,317 during the 1967-1968 school year to 5,648 for the current 1968-1969 school year.

It comes in three economy sizes.

These are just some of the sizes Volkswagens come in. Regular, large and giant economy size.

Regular, you know. It's the familiar beetle.

Large is our Squareback sedan. It holds more than the largest trunk of the largest sedan.

Giant economy size is our big bus-like box. It holds nearly twice as much as the average station wagon.

And all three VWs do everything you expect a VW to do.

They have air-cooled engines (in the rear, of course). So there's no water to boil over or freeze up. And no need for antifreeze.

And they're easy on gasoline. The bug and the Squareback average about 27 miles on a gallon. The box about 23.

So you see, no matter what size you make Volkswagens, they're all economical.

Why not come in and size one up?

First-Stroudsburg launches S.A. drive

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Salvation Army's $400,000 capital fund campaign to provide a new Corps Service Center got off to a flying start with the announcement Tuesday that the First-Stroudsburg National Bank had provided the initial corporate subscription of $15,000.

William P. Wells, campaign co-chairman and Captain Rex Worthy, Corps commanding officer, received the subscription card and initial check from bank president Francis R. Drake.

"The gift is motivated by our thorough understanding and appreciation of the work done by the Salvation Army for Monroe County citizens over the past 50 years," Drake said.

Main entrance

He indicated that the gift would make possible both the main entrance and the office of the commanding officer in the new building. "We will be pleased to have the name of our bank permanently associated with the on-going good works of the Salvation Army in its new building," he added.

Wells thanked the bank on behalf of all the campaign leaders, the advisory board and the Salvation Army. "The 'First' in 'First Stroudsburg National Bank' will have a special significance to thousands upon thousands of persons served through the new Salvation Army headquarters," Wells said.

A special community leaders dinner in behalf of the project will be held next Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the Stroudsburg YMCA.

Hospital okays study for growth

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Board of Directors of the General Hospital of Monroe County voted at Monday night's meeting to engage the services of John G. Steinfle and Associates, Management Consultants, to conduct a study of future needs of the hospital due to the growth and rapid development of the area.

The study will not only evaluate the hospital needs, but also make recommendations as to the improvement of present facilities.

Full participation of the board of directors, the medical staff, and the administration will be utilized to develop a long range master plan which will eventually provide a physical plant which can, with maximum efficiency, deliver medical services consistent with the hospital's goal and the area's growth.

The program is expected to begin at once and will take approximately three or four months to complete.

It was announced that the auxiliary of the hospital will supply funds in the neighborhood of $6,300 for the purchase of four new pieces of equipment for the hospital: a volume regulated respirator, a Collins respirometer, a rotating tourniquet machine, and teaching tapes for the new coronary care unit.

In addition, Mrs. Maxwell Cohen, president of the hospital auxiliary, presented a $3,066 check to the hospital, reflecting part payment of the auxiliary building fund pledge toward the all new fifth floor which hospital administrator Charles E. Swisher, Jr. reported is now in full operation.

Board approval was also given to have the Dietary Products Division of the American Hospital Supply Assn. study and produce a plan for the immediate modernization of the hospital's kitchen facility. The plan will be designed to blend in with any future type of major building expansion.

E.S. study to cover sewage use

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Borough Council Tuesday night received the consulting engineers' report concerning projected sewage plant needs in relation to the growth of the borough.

Romeo Falciani of Albright and Friel, presented the report for council's consideration and action.

The report indicated that the borough's sewage treatment plant will, within two years, need to face expansion, to handle the growth of the East Stroudsburg State College, and the growth of the community itself.

King Beers, chairman of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority, presented a resolution to council for its approval concerning a $22,600 grant request from the state for a nine month comprehensive planning study of the borough's Neighborhood Development Program.

Council is expected to approve the resolution and submit its concurring resolution for the request at next Tuesday's regular meeting.

Funded by state

Beers explained that the grant would be 100 per cent funded by the state.

Of the $22,600, Beers said $14,500 would be for consultant fees, $7,000 for redevelopment authority administrative fees and $1,100 for a scale model of the entire redevelopment area within the borough.

Beers said the East Stroudsburg Planning Commission and the redevelopment authority had already endorsed the resolution requesting the state grant.

Pending the council's approval, the two remaining governmental agencies which must approve the request are the Monroe County Planning Commission and the Monroe County Commissioners.

Leon Zacher, chairman of the East Stroudsburg Planning Commission, submitted the expansion plans of the Redmond Finishing Co. to council for its approval.

Official action on the plans will be taken by council at their regular meeting Tuesday.

Stroudsburg architects earn pact

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg architects Rinker, Kiefer and Rake will design the toll plaza, administration and maintenance buildings for the New Hope-Lambertville Toll Bridge, according to chairman of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission, Edward K. Driebe.

The $11 million bridge is slated for completion in late 1970.

Also authorized was a "bridge needs study" for the replacement of some of the obsolete tax supported bridges at Riegelsville, Pa. and Riegelsville, N.J.; the Belvidere-Riverton Bridge, the Frenchtown-Uhlerstown Bridge and the Washington Crossing Bridge.

The Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission also hired John C. Spinale and Associates of Trenton, N.J. as public relations firm.

Community Chest rewards workers

STROUDSBURG — W.C.G. Peterson began a two-year term as president of the Monroe County Community Chest Tuesday night following a report on the past campaign which he noted might be tough to live up to.

Dr. Nathan Meyer, the retiring president, and John Parker, the campaign chairman last fall, reported that the highest goal in the history of the Chest—$132,756—had been reached.

Technically it wasn't quite made, Parker admitted. The actual subscriptions and collections came to $131,918 but as the money came in it was invested and the interest gained has put the campaign over the top.

The reports were given to the annual meeting of the Chest and its Council attended by about 50 people at the YMCA. As part of the business meeting Peterson was elected to head a slate of officers that also includes Harry Lee and Parker as vice presidents, Mrs. Eugene Marlin as secretary and Francis Drake as treasurer. Richard Walters was named 1969 campaign chairman and John Baymor was named vice chairman.

Directors and committee members were elected and awards given to businesses and industries that had surpassed their quotas during the campaign.

Dr. LeRoy Koehler, president emeritus at East Stroudsburg State College, gave a brief but inspiring talk as a conclusion to the program.

Dr. Koehler reviewed the agencies serviced by the Chest, citing examples of the need for each.

What you have accomplished," he told the workers, "is good for the community in the agencies it subsidizes and in the example your unselfish work sets for our youth; the volunteer no-pay work," he said, "is good for the satisfaction it brings to those who perform it and finally it is an accomplishment for 'the brotherhood of man, the Christian spirit . . . by people who don't think of me first.'"

In the process of his remarks Dr. Koehler praised the Red Cross and USO and used this entire to the war in Vietnam to suggest that "protest movements," to my mind, "can only lengthen the war by giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Especially praised by Dr. Meyer in a brief summary of his year as president were Parker and his wife along with Jesse Flory, chairman of the industrial division and Miss Ethel West, the executive director.

Police Chief Donald Quick said that this is not the first time vandalism of meters in the college area has occurred and that if it continues he will recommend to council the meters be removed and 30 minute parking signs be erected.

Question for today . . .

What do foresters do when foresters don't forest?

Forrest C. Evans of Cresco, a forest inspector for the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters, checks equipment on his truck before going out into the field.
(Staff Photo by B. Walter)

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

BARTONSVILLE — Ever wonder what foresters do in the wintertime.

"They do plenty: like managing a 70,000 acre 'estate.'"

The "estate" is the 70,000 acre Delaware State Forest in Monroe, Pike and Northampton Counties.

The estate contains 55 miles of roads; 34 miles of foot trails; 115 miles of old logging trails and 15 bridges.

The Delaware Forest District, headed by John Bitzer and staffed by 12 professionals, have to maintain this vast woodland which contains five lakes and 990 cabins within its 304 mile boundary.

The forester's job, Bitzer said isn't just in the summer-time to call attention to "Smoke The Bear" and his "only you can prevent forest fires."

The wintertime work — actually it's done all-year round, but more concentrated in the wintertime, falls into three main areas, Bitzer said. These are forest protection, forest management and forest advisory service.

The local state forest district which Bitzer heads has four forest foremen whose job it is to maintain all of the roads and the 304 miles of boundary. Each foreman is responsible for a division of the state forest which is broken down into sections.

While a majority of the roads within the forest are dirt, they must still be checked repeatedly and cleared.

The boundary-line is also walked to make sure all the boundaries of the forest are clearly marked.

There are also innumerable buildings, ranger stations, forester residences and workshops which have to be maintained as part of the forest management.

Involved also in the forest management is the composite lease program for the thousands of persons who come into the Delaware State Forest for hunting, fishing or even just plain hiking and being out in the woods.

Currently there are 990 cabins which are leased to individuals and families. Of these, 500 are located in Porter Township.

The State Department of Forest and Waters leases one-fourth acre of land to citizens on which they can build cabins. The lease is for a period not to exceed 10 years and costs from $20 to $25 annually.

The local forest district employs, in addition to maintaining the lease program, must also inspect each leased parcel and cabin to determine whether established regulations are being followed.

The department, Bitzer said, 15 years ago established a zoning plan for the Delaware State Forest and the other 19 forest districts in the state. The zoning map depicts areas in which camps can be leased.

The State Forest is also open to snowmobiles in the wintertime and also for horseback riding in summer.

Aside from these recreational aspects and the management needed, the local forest district is also in the timber business.

The timber business must be good for Bitzer said that the state's general fund receives one million dollars annually from timber sold in the state forests.

But selling timber isn't an easy matter of just walking through the 70,000 acres and painting an "X" on trees that look hearty enough to become a chair, table, dresser, bed or what have you.

As a matter of fact, much of the timber from the Delaware State Forest is being used for baseball bats.

The 70,000 acre forest is divided into districts, then mapped and coded to such an extent that a forester — by looking at the map will know where certain types of trees are in the forest and in what quantity and condition.

Most of the timber is mixed oak although there are also northern hardwoods such as Sugar Maple, Beech and Black Cherry.

The sectional forest map is supplemented by a resource plan which contains in-depth data on the forest and what it contains.

For a timber sale, Bitzer said an area is selected, the volume of timber chosen and the trees are marked. As if this wasn't enough to get in there with an axe and start cutting, the data is fed through a computer.

The computer, Bitzer explained, will spew out information on the timber in the particular site selected, report its condition, marketability, note the diameter of the trees, list the species and it sets the minimum price the state should ask for the lumber.

If this isn't enough, the local forest district also provides a forest advisory service. This includes private woodland owners on every aspect of woodland management such as timber growth, planting and forest protection.

The district also aids individuals on problems with trees.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— Eastern powers St. John's, Villanova and Duquesne—all nationally-ranked—grabbed three of the 10 at-large berths Tuesday in the 31st annual National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) basketball championships.

It marked the first time since 1964 the NCAA has filled its tournament bracket to a maximum 25 teams.

St. John's (20-3), Villanova (20-4) and Duquesne (17-3) ranked eighth, ninth and 10th nationally in this week's United Press International major college ratings. All were placed in the Eastern bracket.

The NCAA, which extended its bids Tuesday two hours before the National Invitation Tournament (NIT) in New York, also landed the defending NIT champion—unranked Dayton (17-6)—as one of three at-large entrants to the Midwest Regional.

Other independents landing NCAA berths Tuesday were: Midwestern—Marquette (19-4) and Notre Dame (18-5).

Midwest—Trinity University (18-4) and Colorado State (15-4). West—New Mexico State (ranked No. 13, 21-3) and Seattle (18-7).

Of the 10 at-large entrants selected Tuesday, only Trinity has never appeared in the NCAA university division basketball tournament although it finished third in last year's college division championships. Seattle has the most previous NCAA tourney appearances—10—including its 1958 title game loss to Kentucky.

St. John's and Dayton were the only other teams selected Tuesday which have ever reached the NCAA finals. The Redmen bowed to Kansas, 80-63, in 1952 and the Flyers—who beat Kansas in the NIT finals last year—lost to UCLA, 79-61, in the 1967 championship game. Villanova reached the semifinals in 1939 and Duquesne, which will be making its first NCAA tourney appearance since 1952, was a semifinalist in 1940.

Defending NCAA champion UCLA, shooting for an unprecedented third straight title and its fourth in the last five years under coach Johnny Wooden, would be one of seven conference champions drawing first-round byes into the regionals. Others are from the Atlantic Coast, Southeastern, Big Ten, Missouri Valley, Big Eight and West Coast conferences.

Champions from the Middle

Atlantic, Southern, Ivy League, Ohio Valley, Mid-American, Southwest, Western Athletic and Big Sky conferences will all play first-round games March 8 at five different sites.

The four regionals—East, Midwest, Midwest and West—will be played March 13 and 15 with the finals scheduled at the University of Louisville March 20 and 22.

NCAA Tournament Bracket:
1st Round—March 8

Mantle reports Friday; knees key to playing

DALLAS (UPI)— Mickey Mantle will report to the New York Yankees training camp this weekend, perhaps for the last time in an illustrious career, "feeling better than in years," but not predicting how long his troublesome knees will allow him to stay.

The 38-year-old Mantle, who has a lifetime batting average of .302 and 518 home runs in 17 seasons with the Yankees, said his main problem, a wobbly right knee, appeared in good shape.

He said the knee, which has had a habit of swelling badly when he was forced to walk instead of use a cart on the golf course, had held up remarkably in recent weeks.

He credited the change in the knee's behavior pattern to mineral water which he had been given by millionaire oilman H. L. Hunt, who operates the Indian Springs Resort in West Texas.

"The darn stuff really worked wonders for me," Mantle said. "Since I started drinking that water the knee hasn't bothered me a bit. I walked every hole week before last at La Costa, Calif.," he said in reference to an airlines-sponsored golf tournament in which he played with the New York Jet's Joe Namath.

"The knee took all that walking and I feel better than in years," he said. "But, I don't honestly know how the knee will hold up once I get to camp and start workouts. Something could happen early in camp and it would all be over I just don't know."

He had said earlier that he would test his ailments in camp "and decide in a week or two" whether he would try to play, or retire.

The thought of retirement doesn't pose the problems to Mantle now as it might have a few years back when some of his business ventures ran into pitfalls.

He now is in the formative stage of two business chains, one a franchise restaurant network known as "Mickey Mantle's Country Cookin'" and a group of men's clothing stores bearing his name.

The restaurant chain has only two outlets in operation, in San Antonio and Longview in his home state, but he has 45 other franchise outlets sold and expects to have 100 this year. There is only one clothing outlet, in Atlanta, Ga., but others are coming.

"There is enough to keep me busy right here," he said in talking about what he would do with his time if he retires.

"I am committed to appear at every opening and if those 100 opened one at a time every three or four days, you can see I'd have my time well filled."

Asked what he would do if the legs hold up and he plays out the season, Mantle laughed and replied:

"Oh, I'll be able to do what the two careers—if there are two careers. And, I'll find time for some golf, too."

Rookies to get chance for Bucs

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)— The infield of the Pittsburgh Pirates will be flanked by rookies this spring. Al Oliver and Bob Robertson could platoon at first base while Dick Hebner, who hit .276 for Columbus, Ohio last season, seems set at third base.

The Pirates were hard hit in the expansion draft, losing third baseman Maury Willis, first baseman Donn Clendenon and outfielder Manny Mota.

Late selling cause

Stocks retreat again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks made a gallant effort to break into the winning column Tuesday, but late selling forced the bulls to retreat for the sixth consecutive session. Trading was heavy.

Most market indicators, including the closely watched Dow Jones industrial average, started the session in healthy fashion in response to a full budget of constructive economic news. Included were rising steel production, increased prices on hot rolled strip, higher gasoline prices, a 9 per cent jump from a year ago, better automobile sales a boost in consumer prices in January, and a forecast by a private economist of stepped-up capital spending by business this year.

However, unsettling international news and concern over tight money conditions at home brought out the sellers in full force after mid-session.

Many traders felt that the new offensive by the communists in South Vietnam could jeopardize the Paris peace conference which resumes on Thursday.

Indications were that the latest communist offensive violated the agreement that led to the bombing halt of North Vietnam on Nov. 1. While there was no official word on whether Washington planned retaliatory action, South Vietnam recently let it be known it would send its air force against the North if the attacks on the cities continued.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a loss of 0.95 in 1,594 issues crossing the tape. Declines topped the advances, 1,009 to 389. There were 107 new lows and two new highs.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials, up almost 7 points early in the session, ended off 4.17 at 899.80, its lowest level since last Aug. 30 when the DJ stood at 896.01. DJ rails and utilities also retreated.

The New York Stock Exchange index mirrored a loss of 35 cents in the average common share price.

Volume aggregated 12,320,000 shares down slightly from the 12,730,000 shares Monday. Loew's Theatres topped the list of 15 most active issues, which included 13 losers, one winner and one unchanged. Loew's Theatres dropped 2 1/4 to 49 1/2 on 151,300 shares.

Occidental was in the runner up spot, losing 1 to 43 1/4 on 142,000 shares. Standard of New Jersey, another heavily traded oil, rose 1 1/2. Texaco and Phillips, which hiked gasoline prices, fell 5/8 and 1 1/2, respectively. Pennzoil added 1 1/2. Sinclair 1 1/2. The latter spiked 7 on Monday after a subsidiary firm reported an oil discovery in Indonesia.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Selected stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

Your Horoscope By Francis Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Streamline wherever it will accelerate progress but, where matters are running smoothly, make no drastic changes. Your ambitions should be at a peak now.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — A day in which the Taurus should shine! Capitalize on your top-flight ideas and ingenuity. Set your mind on thorough accomplishment. Obstacles will tumble, success jell.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Many fields of endeavor are favored by generous planetary influences. Be enthusiastic about all the opportunities available. Capitalize on your fine talents, your magnetic personality.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A good day for trying out a new idea or method you may have had in mind. You have the ability to turn the ordinary into the interesting, improve the mediocre with a novel twist. NOW is the time to use it!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Planetary influences stimulate your knack for handling matters that involve many persons. Especially favored: Salesmanship, organizational matters, government work and banking interests.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Some unprecedented moves or unusual propositions possible. Study all situations carefully so that you can cope efficiently. Make no drastic changes unless necessary. Be especially careful if finances are involved.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Mixed influences. Choose prudently what must be accomplished first, and what must be completely deleted from your schedule. Press for cooperation, new advances.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Even though fairly certain of the feasibility of a new plan you have evolved, this is NOT the day in which to launch it. Think it a bit more, and wait for a more propitious day.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Under present influences, you can do a terrific job in promoting yourself and your interests and, along the way, assisting others who may be less adept or who lack incentive. New ideas should work out well.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Emphasize your clear thinking and your innate understanding and tolerance of others. Thus you will achieve the cooperation of associates in bringing about cherished aims. An old interest may be revived.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Mixed influences. However, certain dilemmas and obstacles will not be as difficult as you may think. Don't let them keep you from appreciating your advantages and blessings.

YOU BORN TODAY are roundly talented and bright of disposition; are willing to give readily of your abilities and energies to any worthwhile project. You are affable, enjoy the company of friends and an artistic home atmosphere. You want to work in harmonious surroundings, too, but even if things don't go quite as you'd like, you are philosophical about it.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Bob Hope's not missing this year's Oscar awards and it's their loss. . . . Bob's hosted 14 of the 41 Academy events. . . . At Bill's Gay 90s, Mary Small said she's finished her "Child Prodigy" book about her early star-dance when by age 17 she'd earned $300,000 and others accommodatedly spent it for her. . . . Doubleday will publish, she said.

Jana Mason, opening at the St. Regis Maisonette Mar. 3 takes only three engagements a year: the other two are in Vegas and Chicago. . . . Why? She's busy mothering three and being wife to Chicago socialite Frederick G. Wacker, who's so prominent the Windy City's Wacker Dr. is named after Fred's family. . . . No. 1 Soul Singer James Brown "went public" with a new firm called "Gold Platter" to operate and franchise a chain of restaurants. . . . Gov. Malloy might be interested in knowing the young black star is being backed by a group of white Georgia businessmen. . . . George Carlin (you've seen him being very funny all over the TV channels) may start a trend — says there won't be so much as one "blue" line in his material at the Americana's

Royal Box when he opens here Mar. 4.

Sidney Howard's "The Late Christopher Bean" will be revived next month at 111 E. 59th St. — that's the Lighthouse Little Theatre and all the actors are blind. . . . Have a statistic from U.S. files: during the 1911 huss & buggy days N.Y. street traffic moved at an average speed of 1 1/2 miles an hour. . . . Last year N.Y. traffic averaged 8 miles an hour (progress?).

Jimmy Stewart has the answer to a star losing his privacy: "Privacy is for public accountants. They need it. Actors don't. The minute the public grants a star privacy, he isn't one any more."

Bridget Hanley of "Here Come the Brides" will wed E. W. Swackhamer in April. . . . Dana Andrews flu out of the "Paint Your Wagon" troupe at the Meadowbrook Dinner Theatre in N.J. . . . Comic named Roger Ray promises to do a "Guzzler's Gin" commercial-burlesque on the Merv Griffin Show — we trust he knows it was created by Red Skelton more than 30 years ago and remains one of Red's prized hallmarks.

Bing Crosby refused to go see the homosexual comedy "The Boys in the Band" but women are of sterner stuff — wife Kathy and socialite Anne Slater limousined off to the swish-hit after lunch at "21". . . . One of the minor but important scandals erupting from the blizzard mishandling — snow vehicles didn't get anti-freeze.

After all these decades, film star-TV producer Gail Patrick and husband Cornelius Jackson dropped each other's options. . . . Leslie Uggams showed up at Sardi's with her Australian silky pup in matching mink coats. . . . "Sidney had his mink coat before Joe Namath did," Leslie said, always defending her beastie.

Always beautiful ex-Ziegfeld doll Irene Hayes is over her latest operation (appendix) and dined at Louise's E. 58th St. spot. . . . Random House will publish Eldridge Cleaver's random speeches, articles and prose and if you see him autographing copies — call the FBI because he's still on the wanted-list.

World in mess

Everywhere you turn these days someone is telling you what a mess the world is in. Heavens knows everyone has tried to do something about it: William F. Buckley, Lady Bird Johnson, the flower people, Shirley Temple and Mia Farrow.

It occurred to me that if Superman roamed the earth today even he would be powerless to solve some of the problems plaguing our society.

To begin with, as Clark Kent, newspaperman, he would never have survived the Democratic Convention in Chicago last summer. They'd have broken his glasses, torn the buttons off his double-breasted suit and arrested him on a 707 (undressing in a public booth while the light was on).

Impossible problems As Superman his problems would have been impossible. Kennedy and O'Hara airports would insist he file a flight plan and await his turn to land. Madalyn Murray O'Hair would frisk him for concealed prayers before take-off.

While the public screamed, "Look up in the sky. It's a bird. It's a plane. It's an UFO," the Air Force would collar him and say, "You big jerk! What are you trying to do? Just when we had people believing in swamp gas, you have to show up."

Every week or so, enroute to Miami, someone would look over his shoulder and say, "Okay, clown, there's a gun under your cape. We're going to Cuba."

As for curing the social ills, public suspicion and resentment would render him powerless. Can't you see him at, say, a New York garbage collectors' union meeting?

"Hello there, I'm Superman." "Hey, Al," yells a member, "I thought we weren't going to open the bar until after the business meeting."

"You don't understand," says the crusader. "I'm here to help."

"Do you know what we do with spies from Lindsay's office?"

"I'm not a spy. I'm Superman. And I'm here to restore, order and peace to the city where we can all live together in cotton-candy harmony."

"Good Lord, it's the Mayor himself."

"Do you want me to line up all the bad guys and zap 'em?"

"Get out of here or we'll call the police."

"I can walk through a wall for you. Hold up an abandoned mine shaft that is caving in. Fly the Atlantic in three seconds."

"OUT!"

As they gave him the heave-ho, Superman shouts, "Anyone have an asthmatic son I can fly to Phoenix?"

Poor Superman. It's just as well he isn't here. Jean Dixon would out-vibrate him. Ralph Nader would declare him unsafe at any speed. Elizabeth Taylor would buy him for Richard's birthday. Ed Sullivan would sign him up for 18 weeks to tear phone books in half, and the Democrats would run him in 1972.

Ah well, someday we'll get back to the fun times when we only had crime, corruption, poverty and a sex recession led by Lois Lane.

Envious jokes

By JEAN ADAMS

RUGGED: (Q.) I'm a Girl Scout. When I tell people I am, they laugh at me. I wonder why. I've never had so much fun as I've had in the Girl Scouts. I don't know why everybody thinks of us as goody-goody girls. I think a girl has to be pretty rugged to go on camping trips and do all the other things we do.

I've learned useful skills in the Girl Scouts that I couldn't have learned anywhere else. I've had the chance to go places and see things. I'm sure others feel the way I do — other Girl Scouts, that is.

Some people may differ with me. If any write in, I'd like to hear what they say. Thank you.

First-Class Scout in Massachusetts

(A.) I don't believe most people think Girl Scouts are goody-goody. I think some people realize they can't measure up to Girl Scout ideals and movements. They are not, as you say, rugged enough. So some of them make jokes, envious jokes.

Thank you for your comments. I'm glad you spoke out. You see I'm a First-Class Girl Scout myself.

NEW BOOTS: (Q.) I got a pair of new knee boots. But I don't know what to wear them with.

E.O. in Dallas

(A.) Boots are casual and are for wearing with casual clothes. They go best with short or long (midi) skirts, not so well with in-between lengths.

They are fine for school, shopping, sports events. In a climate such as yours, where it is warm much of the time, boots look more reasonable when you pick cold or rainy days to wear them. Always adapt specialized fashions to your geographical location and wear them at the right time and under the right conditions. You wouldn't wear a raincoat on a warm, sunny day. Don't wear boots on a day like that, either.

Consult allergist

Dear Ann Landers: Is it possible that my boyfriend is allergic to me? Lately when we are together he breaks out in a rash and starts to itch like crazy. Believe me, this can ruin a romantic moment.

At first I thought it might be my wool sweater, but the same thing happened when I wore silk and cotton dresses.

One day, as an experiment, I took almost everything off and he itched worse than ever. Does this mean we can't get married? Please check with your consultants and get some word back to me immediately.

WORRIED WENDY

Dear Wendy: Your boyfriend might be allergic to something you are wearing other than clothing, such as makeup, hair spray or perfume. He should go at once to an allergist who will tell him what to bring in for testing.

If the tests reveal no allergies and the itching persists, he should consider the possibility that the rash is caused by an emotional problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 18, a girl, and want to have my nose bobbed. I've seen some awful results as well as some beautiful ones. I'm reluctant to ask a person the name of his doctor because most people would like you to believe they were born with the nose they now have.

How does one go about finding a truly skilled plastic surgeon?

D. S.

Dear D. S.: Don't ask a person who obviously has a botched job. Ask someone who has had great success. A pleased patient should be happy to recommend his surgeon. I think.
